The wonderful reductions in the pacing and trotting records and international contests gave the sporting year of 1963 its special distinction. Cresceus, Lou Dillon, and Major Delmar all clipped time off the trotting record, and Prince Alert and Dan Patch were equally successful in their assaults on the pacing mark.

The three-time victory of the Reliance over the Shamrock in the America's Cupraces was the banner event of the international contests, and attracted the closest attention of votaries of sport in the realm of both Uncle Sam and Johnny Bull.

Two fighting championships changed hands. Frankie Neil won the featherweight title from Harry Forbes, and Robert Filzsimmons plucked George Gardner's laurels as light heavyweight champion. Jeffries defeated Corbett In the only contest which involved the heavyweight title.

Sournin, District champion. It was trict champion. It was the hardest-fought battle over the board that has taken place in Washington in a long time. Mr. Sournin had defeated Mr. Fox in a former match, but as the young New Yorker has been playing with the b-! best players in this country and improv-ing in his play, it was thought by many that he would return the compliment this time, but after ten hours of hard mental struggle the match resulted in one game each. It is hoped that another match will be arranged between these players later. One of the games

Athletic Club yesterday.

It was Jackson's fight from start to finish. Larry fought badly. His strength lay in hugging and falling to the floor to avoid punishment. Although the lighter of the two Jackson forced matters from the start and it soon was seen that Larry was completely at Jackson's mercy. He was completely at Jackson's mercy. He was knocked down in the second round, twice in the third round, four times in the fourth and six times in the fifth. The last time he was floored he was counted out.

Jimmy Farren knocked out Leon Croney in the second round of their bout. Although Croney was ten pounds the heavier, Farren outclassed him. Farren will now be matched to meet Hughey McGovern.
